Western Australia's Proposed 2007 Electoral Boundaries

Dear Sir

I wish to lodge my objection to the proposed changes for the electoral boundaries in the Churchlands / Scarborough region.

I believe that both the suburbs of Churchlands and Woodlands would be better represented in the Scarborough region.

The Churchlands region is proposed to have 22,754 electors, whereas the Scarborough region is proposed to have 462 less electors (22,292)

By moving the electors in the Woodlands and Churchlands suburb into the new Scarborough region it would be fairer and even

The whole of the suburb of Woodlands should remain under one state government region as no one will listen to us if there is a problem in the neighborhood if it splits in two

Yours sincerely

James Price
